We'll be riding along the Wheat Ridge Greenbelt trail system, parallel to Clear Creek as it makes its way from Golden to the South Platte. The trail system is a reclamation of sand and gravel pits, which now provide varied habitat in which abundant wildlife may be seen. The urban landscape includes a mix of native and exotic vegetation: grasslands, cottonwood/ willow woodlands, meadow, and marsh. Mammals in the corridor include badgers, prairie dogs, deer, beavers, red foxes, muskrats, and raccoons. This park also provides renowned bird watching opportunities, especially this time of year. Birds that inhabit open, dry grasslands include small hawks, numerous songbirds, burrowing owls, and the State Bird of Colorado— larkbunting or prairie lark-finch. Birds such as ducks, great blue herons (the largest heron in North America), belted kingfishers, and red-winged blackbirds are attracted this aquatic habitat.

Club Benefits

As a club, we enjoy many benefits: wonderful camaraderie, being part of a recognized and respected club, and the shared interest in contributing toward a common goal – making a difference in the lives of youth through. We also benefit from a stash of cycling gear, supporting (youth) members as they grow into larger frame and equipment needs. We also own 4 bike travel cases, available to protect your bike when you fly or travel. If you have something special you are looking for, or advice on equipment; don't hesitate to ask.

MARCH ADULT RIDE

Our kickoff Adult Ride to Cherry Creek Reservoir was a snowout this year. I realize that cyclists are hardy souls, ride in most any weather conditions (part of the madness...), but major snow on the ground made conditions simply unsafe for our March ride. And safety in cycling is part of our creed, so we must practice what we preach.
